Institutional development Enhance its capability with resource mobilization, international and national networking, staff development and integration with communities and sectors.

Organizing Assist in the development of the necessary mechanisms to achieve its objectives even where requirements and prerequisites for involvement are not present.

SERVICES

Campaigns management Strategy designs, methodology, figuring out indicators. This also includes bringing advocacy issues to the international audience.

Media relations Accessing people's concerns and advocacies to the print and broadcast media -- from community papers to the national dailies and international publications; from radio to national television.

Conference organizing From conference design to the nitty-gritty of operations. IID also provides secretariate work.

Facilitating Exchanges Get in touch and meet your counterparts from other countries. IID helps in establishing links between people's organizations and communities here and with various solidarity networks elsewhere. Evolving of short to medium-term solidarity internships specially in South countries as we facilitate reverse process here.

Lakbay Pinoy Our version of solidarity cum ecology tourism. See the Philippines in a different perspective.

Trainings and module development Leadership and communications skills, value-formations, staff development seminars, day-care teachers. Using integrated, creative development education and popular approaches.

"In the coming 21st century, there can no longer be two futures-one for the rich, and the other for the many poor. In the words of a poet:

There will be only one future or none at all."

INITIATIVES FOR INTERNATIONAL DIALOGUE

IID envisions a new world where peace, justice and prosperity reigns:

* where nations are sovereign, but are interdependent. Where interactions are guided by the ethics and principles of equality, respect, non-interference and magnanimity;

* where countries have become genuine nations. Where our own people have attained national and social liberation and proceed to build the Filipino nation;

* a new global order characterized by democratic, egalitarian and humane arrangements in the social, political and economic systems and processes of the world.

MISSION

IID shall help develop a South-South orientation and framework in propagating an internationalist perspective and create strategies for its actualization in the country and in our regional part of the world.

IID believes that a comprehensive "South-South" solidarity of the world's marginalized and poor peoples will shape the relations and struggles in the world.

It will also help develop concrete expressions of an envisioned new world order in the local and national levels, to wit:

* Sustain, enrich and evolve complementary initiatives to achieve this vision;

* Integrate internationalism in the framework for social transformation -- whether in the local, national or global spheres;

Nationalism cannot be dynamic without an internationalist perspective. Likewise, internationalism remains merely a concept without a concrete nationalist expression.

Thus, in the international arena, IID will project the struggles, efforts and processes of the Filipino people in building their nation. This, in the context of, and as a simultaneous step in, evolving an emerging new world order.

In the domestic field, IID will popularize the philosophy and orientation of internationalism, solidarity and people's diplomacy as well as pressing international issues and concerns specially those of South peoples.

GOALS

* CREATE an atmosphere for building partnerships among people's organizations, organized communities and sectoral formations and international counterpart and/or advocate groups.

* PROVIDE a popular education program for its constituencies that shall integrate global education, nationalism, value formation and humanism.

* DEVELOP and implement exchanges, study tours, internships and other forms of solidarity expressions between people's organizations and their counterparts and partners both in the North and South hemispheres of the global village.

* PARTICIPATE in campaigns of vital and common import to the world's peoples specially those that directly affect the South.

* DEVELOP new models of economic relations among and between its constituencies, partners and friends. This will be marked by eventual self-reliant, self-generating and self-sustaining socio-economic projects that will integrate the tenets of internationalism to become the local foundations of the envisioned new international economic arrangement.

* SUPPORT and encourage the development and assertions of legitimate people's organizations and movements.

* DEVELOP relationships with all progressive, humanitarian and popular partners, groups, organizations and peoples, even as it asserts its own perspectives and worldview in a spirit of camaraderie, openness, independence, unity and honesty.

IID adopts a three-pronged strategy of popular global education, solidarity expressions with an essential South-South bias and, institution building. Likewise, if need be, actual organizing efforts will be unteraken to effect such strategies.

Global education Train and educate grassroot partners and leaders, community organizers, solidarity and development workers and their counterparts for people's diplomacy. Likewise, develop, enrich, and popularize integrated global education modules.

Develop people's leaders and entire communities and organizations who have integrated internationalism in their frameworks and processes.

Solidarity formations Develop and build linkages of people's organizations with international partners, counterparts and advocates specially in the South. Implement a continuing exchange and internship program between international partners and our people's leaders, diplomats and representatives.
